Yinchuan is a romantic city, steeped in culture and folklore. Featuring the famous Western Xia tombs, the astonishing Sand Lake, as well as less-trodden parts of the Great Wall, where the surrounding desert is a delight to explore. While it retains much of its original charm and nomadic culture, adrenalin fanatics will find adventure sports such as sand sledging offering new thrills!

Being the capital and largest city of Gansu Province in Northwest China, Lanzhou is a city famed for its rich history as a hub on the age-old Silk Road, while travellers today are fond of its unique take on wonderful beef ramen, and the enticing Mogao Caves, a system of underground grottoes housing almost 500 ancient temples

“We are excited to expand into northwest China, bringing the dreamy charm of nomadic desert and Silk Road adventurous experience within easy low-fare reach of Hong Kong,” said Luke Lovegrove, Commercial Director of HK Express. “With the addition of Yinchuan and Lanzhou to our network, HK Express further strengthens the connections between Hong Kong and Asia’s must-see destinations.” added Lovegrove.

The HK Express China route map now includes cities and resorts of striking contrast, including the spectacular mountain scenery of Huangshan, the “gourmet triangle” of Ningbo, Huangshan and Wuxi in the northeast, as well as the southwestern “City of Eternal Spring”, Kunming.
